HERE'S WHAT YOU NEED TO KNOW:

- The challenge is open to teams of 5 middle school or high school students.
- Working with a faculty advisor, teams will develop a mobile app concept that incorporates STEM and addresses a real need or problem in their school or community.
- 8 winning schools will receive a $20,000 cash grant plus professional app development training from MIT Media Lab to help bring their designs to life.
- Students on each winning team will receive a Samsung Galaxy Tab and be invited to present their winning apps at the 2014 National Technology Student Association Conference in Washington D.C, in June.
